Stone Back at Folk.

Dexter, Mo., Oct. 15.—W. J. Stone spoke for two hours at Biggs Opera House here this afternoon.

His speech was about equally divided between the national issues and his own campaign. His references to Governor Folk's candidacy for Senator were couched in sarcasm.

The Senator pictured the Governor as an Ajax or a Mars prancing up and down the aisles of the Senate chamber tossing up Senators Aldrich, Hale, Borah and Dooliver for the mere sport of it.

He said there are now sixty Republicans and thirty Democrats in the Senate, and that if Folk was elected there would be thirty-nine Republicans and twenty-nine Democrats and one mugwump.

The speaker read from a circular telling how Republicans can cross their ticket and vote for Folk. He announced in vigorous words that the only way he desired Republicans to vote for him was to vote the entire Democratic ticket. Senator Stone said that his position and of Governor Folk on the liquor question were identical.—St. Louis Republic.

Misery Loves Company.

"I beg your pardon," said the stranger on the bicycle, riding slowly up to the sidewalk and steadying himself by putting his foot on the curb, "but I am looking for a good restaurant where I can get a good meal. Can you direct me to one?"

The man whom he addressed was standing in front of a store, trying to rub a grain of sand out of his eye with one hand and holding his hat on with the other, for it was a windy day, and at first he made no response. But presently he spoke.

"Go to the next block," he said, "and turn to the right. Four doors down you will find a restaurant."

The stranger thanked him and rode on. About an hour later they accidentally met again. The stranger was on his way out of town. He stopped and spoke.

"My friend," he said, "I followed your directions. I went to the restaurant you directed me to, and I got the worst meal I ever had in my life."

"I thought you would," answered the other. "If you had waited till I got that grain of sand out of my eye I should have sent you to a good restaurant, but you did not. I just had to divide my misery with somebody, and you happened to be handy."

The Hamlin Speech.

Congressman Hamlin spoke at the court house to a good crowd Wednesday. He sized his crowd up as a lot of know-nothings and told them things that would make our readers laugh. He said Speaker Joseph G. Cannon is a despot and explained that in spite of this the Republicans voted with him to a man. We were beginning to lose faith in our friend Cannon, but if his acts are so unanimously approved by the Republican congressmen he must be about right. He spoke of the "robber tariff" in a somewhat misleading way. He didn't tell his audience that everyone of them needed an average market for $375 worth of surplus products every year and yet only paid an average of $2.00 per year tariff, which is the tax paid by the citizens towards maintaining the national government. Mr. Hamlin made himself plain that his party doesn't want the colored vote by declaring that as soon as the Democrats get into power at Washington every "buck nigger" would be kicked out of his government job at once.

Clark-Claycomb.

A wedding of unusual interest Wednesday was the marriage of Rufus Clark of Woodson and Miss Bertha E. Claycomb, at the home of the brides parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Claycomb, in Highland addition. The groom is an enterprising and prominent young farmer while the bride is one of Marshalls charming and pleasant young ladies. They represent two of Saline's old and prominent families. We wish them happiness and prosperity.
